FPMA Announces Search for Executive Vice President

Orlando, Fla. (June 21, 2007) —Florida Pest Management Association incoming President Mickey Nolen announced today that the FPMA will conduct a search for an Executive Vice President after he is sworn in as president next week at the FPMA annual convention in Marco Island, Florida.

FPMA Government Affairs Director Matt Dempsey has served FPMA as interim executive vice president since December 2006.

“Matt Dempsey has served the organization well as we transition from one era to the next. We look forward to Matt’s continued service as FPMA’s voice in Tallahassee and in local governments throughout Florida where he has served our industry so well.”

The Executive Board of FPMA will announce its search criteria for its new executive vice president soon, said Nolen. “We look forward to completing a smooth transition occurring sometime in the fall of 2007.”
